All New York Joins in This Tribute to the Wearers of the Blue.

It was a clear, bright, smiling, joyous the Republic appeared, gray-bearded and old, wending their way to their sun that received the salutes of the respective rendezvous. warships of the White Squadron lying to the broad Hudson, when Memorial Day dawned this morning.

Promise had been given that to-day's observances should be more impressive, more elaborate than those of any previous Memorial Day, and Dame Nature, frowned dismally the year before, smiled benignly upon those in the metropolis who had set their hearts upon honoring the brave men who fell in battle for the preservation inviolate of the Union of States, and those others who came home from the awful strife to die in the ripeness of years by their own firesides. The distinguished foreign visitors to America, wherever they may be to-day, have been given an insight into another distinctive American institution, and those in New York, the Infanta Eulalia, Prince Antonio and Admiral Julio, of Spain; Admiral de Librah, of the visiting Italian fleet, and 500 Spanish and

The Harlem River presented a very animated appearance this morning. There were crowds of spectators along the shore, the river itself was alive with gayly decorated small craft, and the prevailing desire seemed to be to get as near as possible to the contestants in the races in the Harlem River liegatta.

The water was in fine condition for the sport, a gentle south wind barely rippling the surface of the river.

The club-houses along shore were decked with bunting and burgees, and as early as a solice to members and their friends, including a goodly number of fair and enthusiastic women were on hand prepared to NORMANNIA OUT OF HER COURSE.
